Decision Due Monday

City May Lease Airport

The Belle Glade City Commission is expected to officially sign an agreement Monday night to lease the Belle Glade Airport from the state Department of Transportation.

The airport, which has been operated by Glades Correctional Institution for the state Internal Improvement Fund, was leased by the DOT with hopes the city would assume operations.

The city, under the agreement, will sub-lease the airport for one dollar per year from the DOT and assume responsibility for operations and upkeep.

No definite decision has been made yet but the city will probably take advantage of an already existing group of flyers at airports elsewhere last year as the Belle Glade airport Advisory Committee.

Committee president is Howard Barker, who owns Ag-Air Inc.

City Manager William Mallory has said several times that the administration of the airport may be relatively simple since the city has no one at present with the expertise to handle the job.

"For instance," Mallory said Monday, "I've already been asked by one man if he can build a new hanger and I don't know what's involved in building a new hanger."

"From knowing the answers to all the problems involved, we don't even know what questions to ask," he said.

The commission and the DOT have been in contact with each other on the airport since last fall when DOT Mass Transfer Director Dale Kimbrough wrote Mallory proposing the city take over what Kimbrough said may be the busiest grass strip in the state.

Kimbrough's letter was a follow-through on a verbal proposal made during a meeting held Feb. 7, 1973 when the airport was being considered as a site for a permanent Palm Beach Junior College Glades campus.

The college had been offered the site by the Internal Improvement Board but the small storm of controversy which followed caused the PBIC board of trustees to back off from the agreement.

Another reason the trustees decided against the airport as a campus site was because of the temple of sub-leasing already held by the users of the airport.

The airport has been used by the church because the officials at GCI wanted for some time to get out from under the responsibility of operating the airstrip.

GCI was reportedly relieved of its responsibility officially as of Monday.

Kimbrough and the Airport Advisory Committee first met with the city last October and meetings have been periodically held several times since then.

Discussions on the agreement have gone on for some time now, with the two各方 taking down the earlier agreements offered by the DOT.

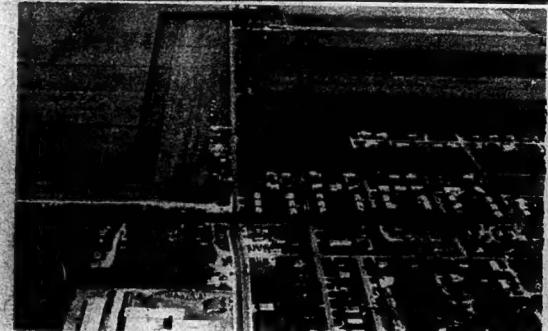

The commission, on the advice of City Attorney John Baker, threw out the first agreement and Baker drew up another one, which the DOT has approved.

One of the main reasons the city has the full amount of land formerly controlled by GCI, up to the area fenced in for GCI cattle grazing pasture.

Mallory said that up until last week, the DOT was using a map showing the city would be leasing all that land but the legal description of the property didn't jibe with the map.

"And the legal description is what would be binding," the city manager said.

One point the commissioners have made clear is that they have no desire to be bound by the agreement:

THE CITY IS PLANNING TO TAKE OVER OPERATIONS AT AIRPORT ...seen here from the view of a pilot approaching the east-west runway to land.

to any schedule of improvements the city would be responsible for.

The DOT agreement provides for the DOT to be responsible for all such improvements as runway lights and communications.

Kimbrough said the reason the DOT is so interested in having the city take over operation of the airport is to provide the city with the capability of handling STOL (Short Takeoff and Landing) air shuttle service.

He said it "would be a shame" for the city to leave the airport at a time when many small towns around the state are having trouble getting sites and added the Belle Glade agreement could be a model for other such agreements around the state.

One problem Mallory said he foresees, however, is complaints from people living around the airport.

He said he has had a large number of telephone calls from nearby residents complaining because crop dusting during the facility take off too low over nearby homes, especially at night.

"I hate to use the term 'ruin awakening,'" he said, "but I'm afraid that's what some of the crop dusters out there may be in for."

"Up to now," Mallory said of the complaints. "We've always had a pat answer. We just told them I didn't have anything to do with the airport but if we take it over, someone is going to have to answer those complaints."

I Am America

I am America.
I lost a lot of blood when I was born 196 years ago and a lot of people didn't think I was going to live. But I was a rugged little baby and I survived.

I've had a rough life. But I've come through it all to still be the most powerful nation on this earth.

When I remember what I was only 38 years old my Mother Country England tried to pick a fight with me. It was my first real test on the battlefield with another country.

Like most young lads though, I didn't really know what I wanted. I almost tore myself apart in 1861. It was a brother against another fought against brother-father against son.

But I came out of it a better country. I was united once again. It was time to start competing with the rest of the world on an economic front rather than a military one.

I put my mind and body to the task. I stretched my legs from sea to shining sea. I worked and I sweated and part of me died. But by the time I was 124 years old, I was one of the most powerful nations in the world.

Then the ugly species of war raised its head again. But it was way over in Europe—and, still being a young country, I had the foolish notion I could stay out of it.

I was wrong. First World War was over, I had sent two million of my young men onto the battlefields of Europe. More than 100,000 of them never returned. But it seemed worth it that since that was the way to end all wars.

Now man I am back then. Twenty years of uneasy peace followed.

My great depression of 1929 caused me great pain. Millions became paupers overnight.

It was a sad, and sight, which incongruously was only fully lifted when the world was again plunged into war.

In 1941 our war machine was at it again. Stilled in 1945, less than 20 years later, it was rampant through Poland while the rest of the world sat by and watched.

Once again I tried to stay out of the war in Europe. But I was no naive this time. I knew the day would come when many of my young men would be sacrificed on foreign soil.

Then, in the middle of my 166th year, my darkest hour came. On Dec. 7, 1941, without provocation, I was attacked that early Sunday morning at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

Thousands of our war machines was at it again. Stilled in 1945, less than 20 years later, it was rampant through Poland while the rest of the world sat by and watched.

Once again I tried to stay out of the war in Europe. But I was no naive this time. I knew the day would come when many of my young men would be sacrificed on foreign soil.

That was almost 30 years ago and there hasn't been another world conflict since then.

Yet there are pretenders to my throne. There are countries that would see me down, and out without a trace of regret. But through it all I keep my chin up. I am free. I am brave.

I am America.

Junior College May Find Home This Month

Palm Beach Junior College President Dr. Harold G. Mallory said Tuesday the college may announce a permanent site for the Glades campus in the near future.

"Negotiations are going on," Mallory said, "and we hope to know something this month but I don't feel I should make any further comment at this time."

The junior college president said he feels the new site will be located near the Glades Center two and a half years ago and the center was installed in the particulars could prove damaging.

The college has been looking for a permanent site since it was first decided to institute a Glades Center two and a half years ago and the center was installed in the Belle Glade National Guard Armory and Glades General Hospital.

Most of the center's classes are being held in the armory, which the college has just received the lease on to begin teaching there.

The original lease was also for two years.

The college began negotiations one time with the State Internal Improvement Fund to take over Belle Glade Airport from Glades Correctional Institution, which has administered the airport for a number of years since Monday.

Those negotiations, however, while ended in a storm of controversy, during which in February 1973 the college was presented asking the college to look elsewhere.

The college's board of trustees decided then not to pursue the airport site.

Another site was offered by the City of Pahokee but the trustees and the site, located in the center of town, were too far north of the center of the population of the campus is expected to serve.

Mannor said Tuesday the college would release the information as soon as it is available.

Thanks to the former Belle Glade editor, three area residents found a second chance at education into productive teaching careers.

Britton G. Sayles, former principal of Belle Glade High School—the forerunner to Lake Shore High School—recently honored Mrs. Christine Maynor and Mrs. Willie Mae White for aid in preparing them for college.

Sayles presently is north county administrator for the West Palm Beach County School System.

The annual July Fourth fireworks will take place at the new event site at Pahokee Harbor, according to Dick Kirby, chairman for the Pahokee Chamber of Commerce special events committee.

Inflation has hit the firework business hard and the Chamber will again be soliciting donations from businesses as they drive up ticket prices.

Kirby said the chamber collected $270 from the crowd who saw the fireworks last year.

He expects the 1974 show to increase to $300-$350 for this year.

school along with the regular students," said Mrs. Campbell, who admitted that she faced pressure from "adults in the community that didn't want us to go to school with children."

"We were eight to 10 years older than the other students."

A migrant worker for nearly eight years after completing high school, Mrs. Campbell continued studies through grade 11 by taking correspondence courses.

"During our high school days, we could have gone to that time," she continued, "but in West Palm Beach, And those of us who could afford to travel that far."

Sayles was presented a plaque during morning worship services at St. John First Baptist Church, where the three women are members.

When he accepted us in school," Mrs. Campbell said, "she was a beautician, and Mrs. White owned a small grocery store.

Mrs. Campbell recalls, work for the women was double that of other students."

"We wanted to show our appreciation even though it had been a long time," said Mrs. Campbell, "and we wanted to keep in our minds to try and something before now. But we wanted to think of something that would last."

Sayles was presented a plaque during morning worship services at St. John First Baptist Church, where the three women are members.

We Made Changes

This special July Fourth edition contains a special section on the placing of material in the herald as well as the date of publication.

Because the Fourth falls on Thursday this year, the Herald was put out one day early to get it in time.

The changes of scheduling necessary to go to press one day early resulted in a slight price increase.

Without help from Sayles, Mrs. Campbell feels she would have continued with the paper as it was.

Disney Contest Winner

Eight-year-old Bernice Dent, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Lee Dent of 608 S.W. Seventh St., is the third-place winner of the Belle Glade Herald's Disney World contest. The Gladesview Elementary School fifth-grader was presented a toy cash register by White's Home and Auto Store owner Charles Ward, "so you'll have some place to keep all your money," Bernice said that if she wins the grand prize of a trip to Walt Disney World valued at more than $400, which she's still eligible for, she'll take her brother, sister and mother. The contest is now in the fourth of eight weeks, and the weekly winners all have a chance, along with other entrants, to win the overall prize.

The Parson Pontificates

Happy Birthday, USA! And many happy returns of the Day! After all she's been through lately, I guess we ought to offer her a little special kindness on the Fourth of July. Isn't it curious that a certain kind of national unification seems to be in progress among us, and that we should be encouraged to despise our heritage? It sort of reminds me of the little boy who killed his father and mother and pled for mercy because he was an orphan. The Good Old USA has nurtured me well, given me some great opportunities, provided me a home and a place to live, given me a vote in every election. She has also given me a rich spiritual heritage and complete freedom of religion, a blessing by no means universally enjoyed. I'm proud to be a son of this nation. Will you join me in chorus of "God Bless America"? Let's hear it for the USA!

Noah's Ark Destroyed?

Collegedale, Tenn.—An archaeologist who in 1960 spent several weeks with an expedition searching for Noah's ark on Mt. Ararat now believes the ark may have been destroyed shortly after

Dr. Siegfried H. Horn, dean of the Seventh-Day Adventist Theological Seminary at Andrews University, Berrien Springs, Mich., expressed this opinion to some 700 ministers attending the Adventist Bible Conference at Southern Missionary College here in May.

Horn said he feels survivors of the flood may have used the timber of the ark to rebuild their homes in a world newly recovered from total deluge.

The dean is not overly concerned at such a possibility, however. Ample proof of Noah's ark's authenticity is continually being uncovered in Middle East countries, he says.

"The stream of new discoveries," he said, "provides so much evidence for a continued updating of our knowledge of Biblical history that it is hard to keep up with it."

Dr. Horn told the conference the "ark" found by today's big diggers in Israel is in the government of Israel issued 131 excavation permits." Many of these, he added, have been major excavations.

The professor has himself made 10 expeditions to the Near East, the first of these at Herkou, in Jordan. Excavations have been carried on at Shechem and Gerez, Jerusalem and Beth Arad and Ashdod, Gibeah and Megiddo, Caesarea and Tirzah.

"Important archaeological discoveries have also been made in Iran, Syria, Lebanon,

Turkey, Cyprus, Egypt, and on the Sinai Peninsula," he said.

Horn reported that last summer an expedition discovered what he believes to be "the remains of a huge open-air water tank" in the Old Testament times. The structure lay about 30 feet below the present surface.

Evidence of organized labor and social organization was also uncovered, the archaeologist said. An ostraca (fragment of clay tablet) with Hebrew text on it, dated about 1200 B.C., turned out to be a letter of complaint from a peasant to high officials regarding unfair treatment by his employer.

The Bible record helps to explain many of the archaeological finds, Horn states. And the finds, in turn, help to support the Biblical account. Most important of all such discoveries to date, he said, was, of course, the Dead Sea scrolls.

However, a large number of extremely important discoveries have been made which illustrate or illuminate certain biblical passages or which corroborate historical events described in the Bible.

Horn urged the ministers "to retain a healthy amount of critical attitude toward all that they hear and see, but to keep up to date in this discipline which is constantly subject to change."

Baby Business Booming

Mr. and Mrs. John Carter announced the birth of their son, James Paul Carter, June 15 at 9:05 a.m. at the St. Lucie Memorial Hospital in Pahokee.

The baby boy weighed 8 lbs. two-and-a-half ounces, and was 21 inches long.

Mr. and Mrs. Gary Hafer of 100 N.E. 1st St. Apt. E., Belle Glade, announced the birth of a nine pound, one-and-a-half ounce baby boy, June 16, at Evansville Memorial Hospital in Pahokee. The child was named Gary Paul Hafer Jr.

Karen's
Korner

By Karen
Hansford

We're getting well into the softball season this summer with three weeks of games behind us (two for the women, three for the men) and already the men players have had two accidents, both resulting in broken bones.

On the women's side, other than a few collisions, jammed fingers and broken glasses everything's A-Okay-so far.

I've been pretty lucky about colliding this year. But just ask anyone on Wallis' Pitcher's staff, "I've got to be the most colliding (?) person playing ball. I run into anything and everything."

Takes last year for instance. At the beginning of the season I ran into our shortstop. Besides knocking off the ball, the crash also jolted the ball right out of her hand, causing a runner from the other team to score. Needless to say there was some embarrassment about it.

And then there's one I'll never forget. Once while we were practicing, I was catcher and Frances McLeod was playing third base. Our coach hit a high pop fly right between third base and homeplate and both of us went for it. I heard him call catcher's ball and I figured well, she's gonna back off. The next thing I knew I had run into what seemed like a wall and I was flying three feet in the air while my skyrockets zoomed past me. Yep, I can finally say I know what it's like to see stars. I was even seeing stripes!

When my head finally cleared I found myself sitting on the ground in the pitcher's mound and I wondered what in the world had happened. Meanwhile, there was Frances sprawled over there, the third base line and the ball. That's only a couple of incidents. I would tell you about more but it would take a whole page.

Of course, one collision happened last Monday night between Glades Sugar and the women's one player on Timmesser headed toward the base, the Glades Sugar pitcher ran over to the base to back up the third baseman (woman?). They all three hit their bats at the same time and everyone went down head over head, head over heel. The Timmesser player recuperated first and headed on home.

Independence Day is here and I'm going to one of the many fireworks retreats—Port Myers Beach again. Yeah, I'm gonna soak up some of the sun if it's shining, and it better be. I'm tired of all this rainy weather and having to worry about whether or not the softball game will be postponed because of bad weather.

Of course, I could always stick around Belle Glade and go to that hot dog stand I was invited to. Jim and Jerry Huppert, the owners of the Tillman's Trailer Park, are putting on a barbecue for the fourth and they're going to cook a whole hog. Imagine that! Unfortunately, I'm going to be at the party this one. Maybe I can make it for the next one.

I hear a lot of people from Belle Glade are planning to go over to the beach for the holiday. It's not surprising since it seems like half of Belle Glade is always over there during the summer and over the holiday weekends.

They do have an impressive display of fireworks for the fourth, very much like the ones we had in our neighborhood town, Pakohos. And what could be more relaxing than to lay on the beach at night and watch the fireworks? Nothing—unless it's a peaceful night camping out under the stars.

Oh well, I hope everyone has a hang-up fourth of July!

Their shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks. Nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more.

One of the ideals sought after by the most Americans is the ability to live in peace. This is a great ideal to have. Wouldn't it be a real victory if our children made these ideals a reality?

If each of us were to reach out one hand in friendship to another, we could make a great difference in the world.

If each of us were to be a good citizen, we could make a great difference in the world.

If each of us were to be a good neighbor, we could make a great difference in the world.

Students Show Fashions

Eight members of the Adult Education-Community School Leadership Training class will participate in the Belle Glade show as part of a fashion show June 27 at Glades Central High School.

The students dressed in a variety of dresses and other apparel which they had made themselves as part of the course's marketing cluster according to Mrs. Rogers.

Lee Young, who coordinates the two programs at Glades Central said the fashion show was the final project of the class for the spring semester.

Some of the fashions were Paula Byrd, Yvonne Freeman, Baby Jackie, Terri Lee, Whitley Sater and Linda Myrick.

The program is headed up by Riley Foster in the Glades area.

Reynold's mobile aluminum recycling van will be in Belle Glade four times during July to pay the 15 cents per pound for all-aluminum cans. The average can of aluminum, at $300 a ton, is lighter than other recyclable materials.

The fastest, all-aluminum cans must be paid for Thursday, July 4, 1974, at 11 a.m. till 12:30 p.m. at the City Park, 500 W. Canal St.

Reynold's Mobile Recycling van asks the public to flatten the cans before taking them to the unit to save time and energy at loading docks. Flatting the cans enables the recycling unit to handle a maximum load of almost 10,000 cans.

Last month's total for Belle Glade show 13,972 pounds, or 321,356 all-aluminum cans collected from ecology-minded citizens.

Pat Hayden, Reynold's regional recycling manager, said "Belle Glade, especially the public beaches, are excellent sources of discarded all-aluminum beverage cans. In the past, it has been found to collect a substantial load of cans for the recycling program in a very short time."

Rogers Dedicates Pump Station

U.S. Congressman Paul Rogers is scheduled to dedicate the pump station south of South Bend on US 441, which is the first part of a watershed program in the state.

At 2:30 p.m., the heavens opened up with a hard downpour that sent the 30 persons attending the ceremony scurrying for cover.

"I'm especially proud of this," Rogers said, "because the people who went into the design and the people who went into the construction are right here in the state and this kind of activity will win the war against inflation."

Rogers was introduced by Palm Beach County Commissioner E.W. "Bud" Weaver as one who would continue representing the people in Congress after the next election.

The pumping station was,

he said, built as a joint project by the Palm Beach-Broward Soil and Water Conservation District and the South Florida's Conservancy District.

The most impressive thing that impressed him with the pumping station is that the pumps were made in Florida.

The pumps were manufactured by MW Ironworks, Inc. of Deerfield Beach. Company president David Eller was present for the dedication.

Representatives, Rogers has also been plagued with rain at two other projecting engagements over the weekend, after the ceremony inside.

"It's been in the Glades a long time," he said, "and one of the problems is that it's usually too dry or too damp. But I'd take it damp any day when we have equipment like this."

Also taking part in the dedication was John Johnson, playing the dual role of manager of the South Florida Conservancy District's Palm Beach-Broward Soil and Water Conservation District board of supervisors.

Others were Palm Beach-Broward Area Supervisor of Schools Donald Vandegrift and State Conservationist William Brown.

Food for The Fourth

Different people have different ways of celebrating the Fourth and one of the more popular and most natural in Florida is to barbecue. People of pigs for barbecue in the slow old Southern style.

The special way of barbecueing is to do it on Independence Day, however. It starts a few days in advance when the hogs are killed and butchered.

And that's where three "old country boys" like James Higgins, Harry Barnett and Charles Barnett come in. They go with some advice by Claude Tindall, who heads up the Glades County Sheriff's Office.

Higgins, Crews and Barnett had raised their pigs on fast food and fast feed for eight at Tindall's house Saturday.

Having a particularly hard time was one of the pigs, Higgins and Barnett interrupted by Tindall who asked if they wanted some salt to keep the meat from spoiling while they were preparing it.

Charles, who also did his share of butchering, had to have done double duty in his chef. He said he intended to begin cooking one of the pigs Sunday morning about six hours before the barbecue was to begin.

And that's one old-fashioned way to observe the Fourth.

Less Bang for the Buck

You get less bang for the buck anywhere you look these days, including the annual fireworks display at Palm Beach County.

Our neighbors to the north have traditionally put on a fine show to help end the July Fourth holiday but rising costs have hit the Pahokee Chamber of Commerce where it hurts the most. — most.

Right in the back pocket.

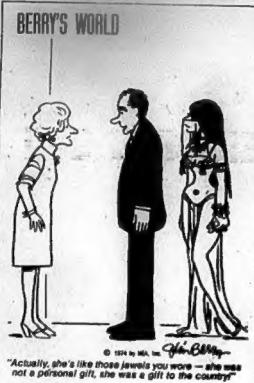

The fireworks show will contain about the same amount of swoosh-fizz-bang as last year but will cost the Pahokee chamber $100 more.

Last year, for the first time, the chamber asked for help from the citizens enjoying the show. Boy Scouts collected a total of $270 at the entrance to the dike and that's all they got this year.

Assuming they collect the same amount this year, that still leaves the chamber to absorb more than $700.

Pahokee has traditionally played host to the entire Glades area every Independence Day, and a gracious host they've been over the years but now they need some help.

Let's dig deep.

with Glenn Laney

the record

Oh yes! It's that time of year again! Vacation!

For the next two weeks you won't have to look at my ugly face up here because I'm going back to my hometown—Watson Ford, D.C.

Yes, I'm one of the people you meet who was actually born in our nation's capital, Washington, D.C. and really, it's a beautiful city.

Now, you hear all kinds of stories about people running around through the streets. You can pretty well hear that about some big cities, but day and about some smaller ones as well. I haven't been in a big city that is cleaner than Washington, D.C. And for you history buffs—it's the best place in the entire country to go in the past.

You can spend two weeks just wandering through the Smithsonian Institution and still not see everything. And a place that doesn't sound too interesting, but is a terribly fascinating building is the Library of Congress.

They have every book you've ever heard of and a lot you haven't. I was made believe in the Library of Congress that there is a story in every book.

I was down in D.C. for my senior year in high school. My girlfriend and I went into the District to the Library of Congress to do some research.

The building itself is so huge is awesome when you walk into it. You just can't believe how big it is that big.

But the thing that really impressed me was that my girlfriend's great grandfather had written a book on the care of water lilies which was in the 18th century. Just for a lark, I went to the card files to see if we could find it. And sure enough there it was. I mean, there's a 19th century dissertation on the care of water lilies by an obscure author, what can it not have?

Anyway, it's been a long time since I've had the chance to visit my father, I'm even going to spend a little time in West Virginia visiting my grandmother. So I'm looking forward to the trip.

But I'm sure that by the time I get back to Belle Glade a little more than two weeks hence, I'll be glad to be home again.

MOW LONG DOES IT REQUIRE AN ICEBERG TO MELT?

I've been meaning to write something in this column for quite some time and never got around to it. So I thought I would let my daughter tell you about the Youth Conservation Camp put on by the World Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission. She's an expert now, having spent a whole week there swimming with the "baby" alligators.

So follow on is her story:

"It's fun to go to summer camp. It was fun. There were canoeing, swimming, riflery, archery, arts and crafts and ecology. We go on mud hikes and you can hold a boa constrictor."

"Sometimes we go on coon hunts. It is fun everyday."

"In art we made belts, jackets, boots, moccasins, and other things. In ecology we get tracks. You learn to canoe, shoot a gun or shoot a bow and arrow."

"Go to Youth Conservation Camp."

"It couldn't have put it better. They teach you to be children where they belong—outdoors. It teaches them respect for nature and trains them to take care of themselves."

It isn't a swanky, rich kids camp by any means. It keeps the kids busy for ten or twelve weeks they are there. They are always doing something every day of the week.

Then it keeps them busy another four weeks after they come back home just talking about what all went on in camp. There should be more wholesome activities such as this for children.

Paul Rogers was in town making the best of a rainy day Saturday. The perennial representative makes himself at home whether it is a swanky banquet or a fish fry in the rain at the American Legion.

There is very little doubt in anybody's mind that Rogers will win another two-year term this fall. He would be a shame if anybody were to unseat him.

He has fought long and hard in the past for the former, he was good to see him again in the Glades.

Well, good-bye for a couple of weeks. I'll say hi to Richard for you.

NO! IF A PIANO WERE TUNED AT PERFECT INTERVALS, IT WOULD BE IMPOSSIBLE TO PLAY IN EVERY KEY!

It's Those Rainy Moving Day Blues Again

I'd rather take a beating than move but guess how I spent the past weekend...in addition to helping put out a special July 4th section...a day early.

I was busy as a two-legged dog scratching fleas.

Don't claim to know what the worst part of moving is, whether it's moving out or settling into the new place. Neither is much fun.

But it does help when you have a friend like Jim, and my new neighbor, Smiley Cross, pitched right in and helped install a heavy hunk of iron called an air conditioner.

All right, Jim, so that's not exactly the way it was, but I was right there to hand you a screwdriver or hammer when you wanted it...or a can of beer.

Jim's one of your all-around Jacks of all trades who's nice to have around when you have a job to do; at least it's real nice when you aren't any more mechanically inclined than the Cracker Crumb, or don't have any more tools.

He's a man of real integrity too. You can't buy him, but a bribe of a few suds will be a powerful help.

Showing another side of his talents, Jim and I had a nice morning butchering pigs for the Picnic, which he was also in charge of cooking.

Didn't even have to work at it to get an invitation to the cookout. Now that's the kind of neighbors I like.

Has it been wet enough for you? Seems like that's the way it is though. Get a dry spell, and just about time you think the Good Lord's given up the idea of damp, along comes a frog-strangler of a gully-washer.

I don't think I've seen so much steady rain since Hurricane Agnes came through a couple years back; or the tailwinds of it at any rate, and did so much damage with tornadoes over in LaBelle and up in Okeechobee.

And it was worse in Clewiston.

I don't know about any of you people, but me, I'm beginning to wonder if we're going to have a day anytime soon when we don't have any rain.

At one point over the weekend thought I was probably wrong.

I was proved wrong on U.S. 27 just south of South Bay to cover the dedication of a new pumping station recently installed as a joint project by the Broward County Conservation District and the Palm Beach Soil and Water Conservation District.

The dedication, with U.S. Congressman Paul Rogers acting as the key speaker, was supposed to begin at 3 p.m. Saturday. At 2:59, the bottom fell out.

After the chairs and podium, and all 40 people gathered for the dedication, were bundled inside the pump house, the ceremony started...and almost ended before it began.

The rain pounding on the metal roof of that shed created all the acme stiffness of the inside of a snare drum with an ace stickman working on the inside.

Three men stood up to say "a few words" and I doubt if anyone even heard a few. Man, it was raining!

Mrs. Lillian Clear, head of the Palm Beach Broward Soil and Water Conservation District, was the first to call the whole thing off until the rain slackened up a bit but Congressman Rogers called out he could speak loud.

Matter of fact, when Bud Weaver introduced the Congressman, we found out he could speak up too. Bud commented the rain was what the into a bait of catfish, I managed to drop the whole exhaust pipe from under my car coming back over the bridge.

Dragged it down the hill and got the car jacked up and didn't know I don't carry tool box. Bill Gravely came through like a champ though with wrenches and wires.

Some people can work under a car but I can't. I sat on the ground beside a chrome like that but I did manage to get it jury rigged so it held until I creped along to Watson Ford before it fell off again.

Well, I said I wasn't a mechanic.

You've probably noticed by now we have a new writer working with the Herald.

Cartheda Taylor is doing a jam-up job as a staffer for us and she's doing a good job.

I first got to know Cartheda when we were both working for the Palm Beach Post and when she called a few weeks ago and asked about the choices of doing some writing for us over the summer, I persuaded Glenn to jump at the chance.

As a Belle Glade native, she's already got a number of built-in news sources and she's making good use of them.

The only bad part of it is that she's just for the summer, then she's off for the big city to further her education. Well, it's nice while it's lasting.

Turned out I was the one lighting strike, though, at least figuratively.

After the dedication, the two districts threw a fish fry over at the marina and after I'd finished tucking

Follow the Reader...

AROUND THE WORLD is the theme for the local municipal library's summer program and is the brainchild of the new librarian Mrs. Ladoties.

The program helps children develop an interest for reading and also teaches them about the different types of literature from all over the world.

Mrs. Linda Brown (top, right) displays some of the books used to show the different types of literature from all over the world. Above, Mrs. Van Winkle points to a picture in a book which illustrates some of the various musical instruments used in the present and past years.

The children's summer reading program lasts for six weeks and the group meets every Tuesday and Thursday afternoons.

Music is said to be the universal language of the world. The children in the Belle Glade Municipal Library's Summer Reading Program used this language as they traveled around the World with music on Thursday, June 27.

Mrs. Marian Van Winkle, playing a church organ, leased to the library by Miss Linda Brown, helped the children with the music. Mrs. Van Winkle discussed musical instruments with the children and showed them an array of books of and about music. She also demonstrated a musical instrument demonstrated by Miss Linda Brown. She showed how different tones could be made with different amounts of water in the bottles.

Besides learning different things about music, musical instruments, and various kinds of music, as well as playing the orchestra, choral, or band the children enjoyed playing themselves.

They sang "America," "Mary had a Little Lamb," "John Brown had a Little Indian," "Show Me Your Mother," "American Pie," "The Star Spangled Banner," "The Little Star," and "The Old Man."

Since we are celebrating our country's birthday this week your public library has a special display of books on our country. One copy of books tells about our country which should be remembered and the other copy gives some information on how to make our future, This is your country. Read about America.

DURALITE

FOR MASONRY

Seals, protects and gives beautiful color to all masonry surfaces, such as brick, cement block, stucco and asbestos siding. DURAFLEX ACRYLIC HOUSE PAINT is a "breathable" type film which allows moisture within the substrate to escape in the form of vapor while protecting the surface from water from the outside.

AND WOOD

DURAFLEX ACRYLIC HOUSE PAINT flows on so easily to provide a blister-resistant low sheen finish for wood siding, trim, shingles and paneling. It dries with a soft, flexible film, reducing the chances of dust or insects sticking to the surface. Whites stay white, colors stay bright, your home stays beautiful year after year.

Also available in WHITE AS-161-00 and BLACK AS-161-01

'Our Lives, Fortune and Sacred Honor'

"When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to break away from political bands which have connected them with another...a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to separation."

The words came thundering down the Atlantic waves, almost to the cataracts of time, from that hot and sultry day when 56 men gathered in Philadelphia to determine the fate of a nation.

"We hold these truths to be self-evident," Thomas Jefferson wrote in his famous Declaration of Independence, "that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights..."

"That, to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed...the wisdom and form of government becomes desirous of these ends; it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it."

They were the leaders of a grand revolt, these 56 men popularly known as patriots of all time. It would become known as the American Revolution and the documents the Declaration of Independence, July 4, 1776 would become history.

But at the time, those men were preaching high treason against the British crown and George III considered the founders of the independence as traitors for treason.

Knowing this, they signed anyway, under the words, "we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor."

We know what happened to some of the signers. George Washington became the first president and father of our country. Thomas Jefferson became the third president. Benjamin Franklin died a wealthy and honored man.

But what of the others. What prices did they pay for the audacity of signing such a document?

Fifteen of the signers were captured by the British and tortured as traitors until they died.

Two had sons killed in the war which had already begun before Thomas Jefferson had signed the first draft of the Declaration.

Nine of the total 56 signers fought in that war and eventually died from wounds received.

What kind of men were they? They weren't the ruffians of the French Revolution who stormed the Bastille 11 years later.

On the contrary, they were men of wealth and security, including 21 lawyers, 17 merchants, four physicians and nine farmers and planters.

In 1776, 13
colonies banded together to fight for their rights.

remain in hiding and he spent his remaining years in absolute poverty.

All he owned was taken from him and he never in Congress without pay.

Soldiers, vandals or both, looted his property at Clymer, Ellery, Greenway, Hall, Howard, Middeton and Rutledge. General Cornwallis had taken over his home for his headquarters.

Nelson never mentioned this to Washington, but instead urged him to attack the house, which was done. Nelson's home was destroyed. He died penniless and his grave is unknown and unmarked.

Francis Lewis had his property and home destroyed. His wife was jailed by the British and she died a few months later.

John Hart was forced to leave his dying wife's bedchamber on every hand, and his 13 children had to flee for their own lives.

John Hart was the only man who owned more than a few cents worth of property when he died.

He had to live in caves and in the woods. After the war he returned to an empty house. He never heard from his family again, for he died a few months later from exhaustion.

There were the fate of a few of the men who signed the document assuring King George III's rule had one object, relative to his North American colonies, "the establishment of an absolute tyranny over these States."

The fates proved these men, the patriots, these revolutionaries, to be men with a deep sense of honor and in these days of Watergate and wide-sweeping governmental scandal on every hand, it may be wise to reflect on the past.

The study of history is important only as long as we carry on the spirit of our forefathers and guide our lives and times accordingly.

In the United States, we hold the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution to be documents surrounded with a mystic aura, so long have they been one proof of this is the fact the U.S. Constitution has been amended only 16 times since its first written form was ratified along with the Bill of Rights, in 1791 by the 1st state, Rhode Island.

Another proof is that one of these amendments have done change the main body of the document and only one amendment has reversed a previous one.

But, sacred as most Americans hold the two documents, a survey taken a few years ago found few people could name even the first 100 words of the Declaration of Independence.

Because of the people interviewed thought the excerpts were taken from the Communist Manifesto. Most said they were Communists.

And they were right.

The this has dividing treason and revolution is treason. While many of the 55 signers of the Declaration suffered for their cause, all would have been hung as traitors to the crown had the rag tag armies of the colonists failed to win the war.

Because they won, the signers are considered martyrs and heroes by those who remember what happened to them.

Special supplement to the Belle Glade Herald, page 5

When it comes to observing the Fourth of July, there are few people who know what it means better than the people in the nation's armed forces.

The Declaration of Independence would have meant nothing had there not been men ready to die for the liberty it envisioned, for everyone's right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

That's what the nation's military services are all about, maintaining these rights for American citizens everywhere...and that's what the U.S. Army has been about since it was formed almost two centuries ago.

But today's Army isn't simply a matter of 200 years of tradition unimpeded by progress. Today's Army is an modern as a blast-off at Cape Kennedy, as up-to-date as philosophies being taught in America's universities.

Today's All-Volunteer Army offers recruits a wide range of choices, including a new two-year program instead of the traditional three or four year enlistment.

To make it better, should you wish to become a part of it all, you get a guaranteed choice of job training or choice of location.

If you're already skilled in one of a long list of job classifications, the Army is ready to start you off at a better-than-ever start.

If you have two years of experience in one of the jobs listed, you start your service as a Spec. 4, with a starting salary of $332 a month...and that includes the traditional fringe benefits such as free medical care and a 30-day furlough every year.

If you've had three years experience, you're even better off. You start off as a sergeant making $438 a month.

If you don't have a skill already, and want to try something different, enlist in one of the combat arms fields, such as today's infantry, armor, artillery or airborne and start off right, with a $2,500 combat arms bonus.

If you have a high school education, you can get anywhere from $1,500 to $2,500 bonus by choosing a list of combat fields, with payment coming after graduation from the training school. Whatever you choose, you'll become a member of one of the world's finest strike teams; the U.S. Army.

Fireworks

Can Be

Dangerous

Although the sale of the more dangerous types of fireworks have been illegal for several years, the Fourth of July continues to provide its share of fireworks-related injuries every year.

A 48-year old man lost a foot and hand when he threw a silver salute at him and exploded. The victim stopped back onto the firecracker.

A 15-year-old accident resulted in many deaths and injuries last year but fireworks also played their part in numerous other injuries Americans face in all walks of life.

A 15-year-old's hand was severely impacted after he lit the fuse and then tried to extinguish it with his fingers and then couldn't get rid of the firecracker before it exploded.

Such "toys" as cherry bombs, aerial bombs, M-80 salutes and other firecrackers result in many deaths, disabilities, amputations and severe burns of many people illegally "doing their own thing" this July 4th.

Children have traditionally received more than their share of these injuries and mutilations.

A 2-year-old boy received burns to the eye when he ran into an ignited hand fountain being lit by his mother.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission estimated 6,500 fireworks victims were treated in hospital emergency rooms last year and that half of the victims were under the age of 15.

Motivated by such results, the federal government established the Child Protection Act of 1968, prohibiting the sale of the most dangerous types of fireworks.

The act bars the sale of any fireworks containing more than two pounds of gunpowder or the main explosive that used to build such devils as cherry bombs, whistlers and other hideously named fireworks.

But while none of the injuries suffered last year were due to the illegal fireworks, most were caused by legal fireworks.

A 5-year-old boy spent ten days in the hospital with burns after he and another child ignited the sleeve of his shirt with a sparkler after an argument. The victim ran home, further spreading the fire.

A 5-year-old boy spent ten days in the hospital with burns after he and another child ignited the sleeve of his shirt with a sparkler after an argument. The victim ran home, further spreading the fire.

If fireworks are still going to be used, the commission urges parents to remember fireworks are not toys. Even the sparkler, considered by many the ideal "safe" firework for children, burns at a high temperature and can easily ignite clothing.

Washington's Prayer For The United States

Almighty God; we make our earnest prayer that Thou wilt keep the United States in Thy holy protection; that Thou wilt incline the hearts of the citizens to cultivate a spirit of subordination and obedience to government: . . . and finally that Thou wilt most graciously be pleased to dispose us all to do justice, to love mercy and to demean ourselves with that charity, humility and pacific temper of mind which were the characteristics of the Divine Author of our blessed religion, and without a humble imitation of whose example in these things we can never hope to be a happy nation.

LOOKING FORWARD

I LOOK FORWARD to a great future for America — a future in which our country will match its military strength with our moral strength, its wealth with our wisdom, its power with our purpose.

I LOOK FORWARD to an America which will not be afraid of grace and beauty, which will protect the beauty of our natural environment, which will preserve the great old American houses and squares and parks of our national past, and which will build handsome and balanced cities for our future.

I LOOK FORWARD to an America which will reward achievement in the arts as we reward achievement in business or statescraft.

I LOOK FORWARD to an America which will steadily raise the standards of artistic accomplishment and which will steadily enlarge cultural opportunities for all of our citizens.

I LOOK FORWARD to an America which commands respect throughout the world not only for its strength but for its civilization as well. And I look forward to a world which will be safe not only for democracy and diversity but also for personal distinction.

A Better Place To Live

The Florida Sugarcane Industry is working diligently to make south Florida a better place to live within guidelines that will continue to allow the industry to grow.

The Industry is fully aware of the necessity and importance of maintaining and improving the everyday environmental conditions. In an effort to meet higher environmental standards, the sugar industry is working in two broad areas-air and water. Under the emissions program the industry has begun installing scrubbers on its mill's boiler stacks and is strictly controlling its open field burning in compliance with regulations. Under the water quality program, the industry has water treatment and self-containment projects. The effectiveness of the two programs is tightly watched by the industry's air/water monitoring procedures.

Although the program is not completed, the industry is proud of its accomplishments in recent months and pledges to continue its all-out efforts to make the Glades area a Better Place to Live...

The Cubans, They Were There

This question has been asked of many Americans by their relatives and friends and the answer varies. I believe the same, "No, I was never there that Cuba played a part".

In order that North Americans and their relatives can be informed of the decisive participation on the part of the Cuban in the realization of American independence, we have to recall the blood spilled and the untold suffering inflicted by the Cubans in what came, Rafael Esteban Diaz, called "the brotherhood in arms in America".

At the beginning of this historical recent, we should recall that historians are in agreement that the forces organized in Havana and made up largely of Cuban exiles and volunteers of Negro and mulatto habaneros led by General Manuel Capital Monasterio, the latter of which was born in the city of Cienfuegos, Cuba, succeeded in snatching the English control of the Gulf of Mexico, the cities of Campeche and Pemexico, the important port of Batón Rouge, Louisiana, and parts of western and eastern Florida as well as the Bahama Islands and the coastlines developed in the Southwest of the Eastern Hemisphere to divert its resources to key points in the struggle in the Americas.

relating to the Decata. We offer next to the readers a tight synthesis of the historical synthesis contained in the above manuscript.

Francis Joseph Paul, Marquis de Grasse-Tilly (Admiral De Grasse) left the port of Brest, France, on the 10th of March, 1781, at the head of a fleet of 22 warships conveying 250 vessels loaded with provisions and equipment worth about $1,000,000.00, arriving in Martinique on the 28th of April. Admiral carried instructions to destroy the English naval forces in the West Indies, in the Antilles, and to cooperate with Washington and Rochambeau.

On arriving at Cape Hall, De Grasse encountered the British fleet under Sir George Brydges Rodney, and of the circumstances that followed De Grasse of the disarrayed state of the Thirteen Colonies, and of the circumstances that Rodney could only count on procuring supplies of funds until the following April. The English warships had intercepted the American transports from France, took note of the fact that there was a possibility of "England" falling to the English. The American cause was urged to present to Virginia in order to bring reinforcements and provisions, and above all, money.

De Grasse made unsuccessful negotiations in Haiti which at that time was the coffee and sugar capital of the world, and, following the advice of the Spanish representative (there) that the situation in the harbor of Havana, opted to go to Cuba. Fearing the reefs of the Bahama Islands (Windward Passage) De Grasse sent a frigate to Havana to Cuba, to inform Cuban pirates, who eventually led the fleet to the harbor of Havana, where it was anchored. Following the frigate Aigrette to Havana, De Grasse's plan nearly failed since the Spanish treasury was empty. The admiral was saved by ladies of the Havana aristocracy which contributed a sum of a million dollars and more, and spontaneously of their own accord be said to the admiral, "We will do all we can to help you, all we can to do so, (the ladies offering their diamonds).

De Grasse left Matanzas for Virginia and succeeded in reaching the harbor of New York, where he participated in the Battle of Yorktown. American independence was a fact. De Grasse returned over the one million dollars to Washington who was able to forward the money to the emerging states and to hit the morale of an army that was already beginning to disband.

THE STAR-SPANGLED BANNER

Oh, say, can you see, by the dawn's early light,
What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gloaming?
Whose broad stripes and bright stars, through the perilous fight,
O'er the ramparts we watched, were so gallantly streaming?
And the rockets' red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there.
O, say, does that star-spangled banner yet wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

On the shore dimly seen, thro' the mists of the deep,
Where the sea's hungry hush in dead silence reposes,
We tracked the banners, o'er the tempest-tost deep,
As it finally, abeam, in the east did gleam?
How it catches the gleam of the morrow's first beam,
In full glory reflected, now shines on the streets:
"Tis the star-spangled banner; oh, long may it wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

Oh, then let it ever when freedom shall stand,
Between thy loved homes and the world's desolation;
Praise the Power that浩然不可侵犯的 land
Praised the Power that has in his might preserved us a nation.
Then conquer we must, when our cause it is just,
And this be our motto: "In God is our trust".
And the star-spangled banner in triumph shall wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

Story Of The Stars And Stripes

The first flags adopted by any Colonial authorities were symbolic of their struggle with Great Britain. The first flag had seven stars and three horizontal stripes.

Beavers, plow and tree, ruddlesome anchors, and various like symbols, with mottoes such as "Hope," "Liberty," "Appeal to Heaven" or "Duty," were all symbols referred to the different banners affixed to the different flags of Colonial America.

The first flag of the colonies to have any resemblance to the present Stars and Stripes was the Grand Union Flag, sometimes referred to as the "Congress Colors."

It consisted of thirteen stripes, alternately red and white, and a blue field in the upper left hand corner bearing the crossed crosses of St. George and St. Andrew, signifying union with the mother country. This banner was first flown by the British at the Battle of Colonial Place in the Delaware River in December, 1775.

The Grand Union flag was the standard of the Continental Army when the British came into being in January, 1776,

and was used by both

Marines and American Regi-

jackets comprising an expedi-

tional force sent to the West Indies during that year.

During the previous year a comical (and untrue) story was circulated of the thirteen stripes appearing on the regiment standard of the Philadelphia Troop of Light Horse

when the British came into being in January, 1776,

and was used by both

difficult it was for the colonists to break away entirely from the British flag under which they had been born and had lived all the years of their lives.

Many Americans still believe that Betsy Ross made the first flag, although no evidence supports this story. Another disputed story is that the first flag was made by a woman named Mary Pickersgill, displayed in the face of an armed mob at Fort Schuyler, August 3, 1777. The flag was impounded, and while it was being repaired, a woman who came from a soldier's shirt, a captain of a ship, suggested the arrangement of the thirteen stars on the blue field, and two red and white stripes should represent a new constellation. As a consequence we find a very unusual flag. The first Army flag, popularly known as the Betsy Ross flag, had thirteen stars, and was based on the idea that no colony should take precedence.

The first flag of the United States had the stars arranged in a square formation in alternate rows, and the red stripes were on a blue field.

A close inspection of this arrangement will show that it shows a distinct symbol of the diamond X-shaped cross and the cross of St. George of the Resolution of June 14, 1777, establishing the Stars and Stripes has an interesting history. After the Declaration of Independence, the Colonials were putting to sea to harry enemy communications and commerce. Many of them flew the flags of the particular colonies and for England, considered arrogant vassals without such a flag as a guarantee that they would not capture them. So the Marine Committee of the Second Continental Congress presented the Resolution, which was on the subject of General Washington, when the Star-Spangled Banner was first flown by the Continental Army.

General Washington has described its symbolism as follows: "We take the stars from heaven, the red from our hearth, the white, purity, separating it by white stripes, in token of the independence that we have separated from her, and the white stripes shall go down to posterity representing liberty."

After the admission of Kentucky and Vermont, a resolution was adopted in January, 1790, making the flag

one of fifteen stars and fifteen stripes remain thirteen in number to represent the Thirteen Colonies, and that a new star and a stripe should be added for each new State coming into the Union. A law of April 4, 1818, that remained requires that a star be added for each new State on the 4th of July after its admission.

A 45-star flag came with Alaska in 1912, Hawaii and New Mexico in 1912, Alabama added a 46th star in 1865, and Hawaii the way for 50 stars in 1900.

The Second Freedom

"Find a need and fill it"—that's the secret of success in a free enterprise system.

But those six words tell us much more than the recipe for wealth. They tell us a lot about the nature of a society in which such advice proves to be a logical premise for granted.

What do they tell us?

First, that a free enterprise society is concerned with the fulfillment of human needs.

Second, every modern socio-economic system claims to have this goal as its aim. But in some societies, the determination of which "needs" to satisfy is vested in a small group.

Under a free enterprise system, each individual has the right to make his own decisions about the kind of work he wants to do, and to act on those decisions. If he is correct, he will be rewarded—not for his greed, but for his service to the community.

Second, the six words tell us that a member of a free enterprise society is free to criticize the established way of doing things.

Finding fault with the status quo is an essential prerequisite to making improvements. We value what works in our economic system, we do not have problems because we value it.

Third, we can see from the first two conclusions that a free enterprise system brings to the identification and resolution of economic problems the greatest possible amount and diversity of talent and skill. There is literally no broader base conceivable than that which encompasses every individual member of the society.

We seldom think of our economic freedom as one of the fundamental freedoms, yet its loss would mean the loss of more freedom, by more people, than the loss of freedom of speech, worship, petition, or due process of law.

Imagine what life would be like if you could not choose your job, if you could not strike or quit your job, if you could not decide where to live, what goods to buy, what choices to eat,

We exercise political freedom rarely; we exercise economic freedom many times each day. It's worth remembering, as we approach our nation's birthday, that it was the settlers that the settlers who founded America and the immigrants who have helped build it came here seeking economic freedom, as well as political and religious freedom.

It's worth remembering that economic repression is one of the indictments found in the Declaration of Independence.

It's worth remembering on the 179th anniversary of the U.S. that economic freedom is—and will always be—a primary form of personal freedom.

And, in so doing we HONOR AMERICA and those responsible for this freedom.

(Prepared by the American Historical and Cultural Society, Inc.)

Freedom Is...

Freedom is a man at the lathe, or at the desk, doing the job he likes to do, and speaking up for himself. It is a man in the pulpit, or on the corner, speaking his mind. It is a man pottering in his garden in the evening, and swapping talk with his neighbor over the fence. It is the unafraid faces of men and women and children at the beach on Sunday, or looking out of the car windows speeding along a four-lane highway.

It is a man saying, "Howdy, stranger," without looking cautiously over his shoulder. It is the people of the country making up their own minds. It is a soprano singing "The Star-Spangled Banner" off key and meaning every word of it.

Freedom is the air you breathe and the sweat you sweat. It is you and millions like you with your chin up daring anybody to take it away from you.

The Florida State Chamber of Commerce said in its World Almanac that before the state had a population estimated to be about 30,000 persons, not counting Indians, in the year 1770. This compares with today's estimate of about 7.4 million.

Jacksonville—What was Florida like nearly 200 years ago, and what were the American Colonies were preparing to wage war for their independence?

The Florida State Chamber of Commerce said in its Weekly Business Review that the state had a population estimated to be about 200 persons, not counting Indians, in the early 1770's. This compares with today's estimate of about 74 million.

COMING EVENTS

Big economic news of the 1770's centered around Englishmen who came to Florida to buy land grants in the state. This was backed up with British to Florida with "titles" to land grants, and most people would have "Indigo" if they saw it," stated Russell S. Spencer, Jr., Executive Vice President of the State Chamber.

"Today, land is still a big factor in the state's economy but investors need very little encouragement from anyone to put their money in that state.

And, of course, citrus, timber, and truck farm products are the major agricultural products and most popular would be "Indigo" if they saw it."

Dr. Ernest V. Vining, President of the State Chamber, said:

"While the flames of revolution were being fanned in the big, progressive thirteen northern colonies, Florida residents who sat up on the side of the British Colonists.

"This wasn't exactly imperialistic because the United States was not a country yet and the slaves were owned by the Crown in the northern colonies were not made in Florida," noted Spencer. "While Florida was destined to be handed over to the Spanish in 1783 and the Seminoles should not be surprised by the United States government, until 1821," he added.

The Review said economic statistics on Florida in the 1770's are not overly abundant. The plantation system was dominant and there were more blacks in the state than whites. Florida's geography made the state less important and desirable in Revolutionary days just as it is today, making it the common denominator throughout the state's commerce history.

A Time to Repledge Ourselves . . .

Born of a revolution, this country began with a pledge: liberty and justice for all. Now...nearly 200 years later...we, the American people, are still striving for these goals. It's easy to find fault...but it takes dedication and unity to bring about change, as our forefathers did. We have the freedom now to do it peacefully. Let's celebrate that freedom today and honor our nation for what's been achieved. Then, let's join together...with a renewed sense of purpose...to reach our goal.

City Vote

Belle Glade City Clerk Vera Jones is finding there's some difference between the names on voter registration books and the names of the people those names belong to.

For the first time in history, Belle Glade's city election on August 10 will be held at the voter registration board under the control of Palm Beach County Supervisor of Elections Jackie Johnson.

This means that anyone wanting to vote in the upcoming city election for the city's three commissioners must be registered with both the city and county in order to cast a ballot.

To make sure everyone knows about the new requirement, Mrs. Jones said this week she contacted Mrs. Esther Derry, who is in charge of all the voters in the city's old books which aren't registered. She has sent each of those voters a letter telling of the new requirement.

As of Wednesday, Mrs. Jones said she had received a list of 2,800 names of people registered to vote in the last city election who weren't registered with the county and she has mailed each of those voters a letter telling of the new requirement.

At the same time, almost 200 voters' lists had been returned by the state Board of Canvassers because the latter carriers hadn't been able to deliver them.

"Makes you wonder where they are, doesn't it?" Mrs. Jones said, riffling through a stack of red right.

Mrs. Jones unless the envelopes are addressed to them, they know their county at all.
